Summary

15+ years building product organizations from zero that scale to millions. At Zumba, I established the company's first product organization—uniting product, design, and QA under a cohesive product-led strategy. Our team delivers platforms engaging 15M+ students weekly and SaaS tools that help fitness instructors build thriving businesses globally. Key wins: Increased instructor funnel conversion by 17%+ through targeted experimentation. Integrated AI-driven personalization and predictive analytics to boost retention. Scaled a fully remote product and design team across multiple time zones. Launched enterprise features that opened new B2B revenue streams. My approach combines customer empathy with rigorous data analysis. I believe great products emerge when UX research, rapid experimentation, and engineering excellence align around clear business outcomes. Beyond Zumba, I serve as Vice Chair on the Executive Board of RecycleBalls.org, where I'm helping scale sustainability initiatives across the sports industry. Speaking opportunities: I'm passionate about sharing lessons learned from scaling products to millions. Particularly interested in speaking about product-led growth, building product orgs from scratch, and practical applications of AI in consumer products.
